Do You Want to Contribute?

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night it was decided to give every one in Columbus and Camp Furlong a chance to contribute to the support of the Community Club located next door to the Rex theater. The business district has been thoroughly canvassed and appreciably all the doors, thus possible have been secured. It is now up to the citizens who have not been asked to contribute to decide their role. The movement is a worthy one. In this particular building dances are held almost nightly for the young folks and the Chamber of Commerce meets there. It is the leading place of scores of white soldiers and officers at times. The equipment consists of good wall pictures, splendid chairs and tables and a well selected library of hundreds of volumes and a number of up to date pool tables. This open air equipment belongs to Columbus as long as it is retained as a community club.

The building is approximately built for the purpose of the club, in fact the conditions are ideal. There are well appointed toilet rooms and shower baths.

The budget the committee is now working on is for an eight months program.

If you are interested and feel the contribution of this club will be for the good of Columbus and for your

The young man was Sergeant Walker and much credit is due him.

Straight Road in Target Range

The Army folks are building a straight road to the target range. Four miles up the Deming road there will be a turn to the west direct to the range. Captain Mason is superintending the construction. The old road was a sort of serpentine affair and was good enough for Captain Mason's 30 miles an hour motorcycle, because that particular cycle never touched the ground after once started. But the captain's wife had something to say about the family's transportation facilities, and a Ford touring was the result. Mrs. Mason said it made her sensible to ride in the range, as it was worse than a figure eight. So of course the captain's changing condition, ostensibly because Major French ordered the change.

Exports More Oil Than Rest of the World

[By Associated Press.]

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—Petroleum exports will be given further impetus as an effort to adjust the difference between then and the government. Provisional President de la Huerta told newspaper correspondents. The provisional president said there would be more uprisings and that the revolts thus far had been promoted by men fearing they would be held responsible for their past acts.

Mexico will export during 1939 between 120 and 125 billion barrels of oil more than all the rest of the world, including the United States, according to estimates made by George Blandine, Tampico oil statistician.

He bases his figures upon the record breaking production of oil in this country for the first five months of 1939, when, he says, exports were 46,617,167 barrels, compared with 28,235,039 barrels during the same period of 1938. Exports for May alone are given as 12,520,566 barrels, which is nearly double the shipments for May, 1938, and sets the world's record for one month's production.

Regarding his estimates relative to shipments in 1939, which he asserts will be 85 per cent greater than in 1938, Blandine says about 100 million barrels will go to the United States.

BLANCKETT HUNG IN SANTA FE. EARLY THIS MORNING

July 8, 1939, the family having moved there from New Mexico. After Blanckett was arrested he requested permission to stay into a creek shack to "say goodbye" to somebody. A moment later there was a report of a gunshot from the interior of the shack. Investigation showed that Blanckett had shot himself in the chest, a charge of shot into his neck. When asked why he replied: "I couldn't tell another."

Although a diligent search was made in the mountains east of here, Armer's body was not found until January 14, when a dog belonging to Antonio Randoval y Griego walked into the house carrying a part of a human leg bone, on which a shoe still remained. Antonio followed the dog on the back trail and found the bones that remained of Armer's body, in an arroyo 300 yards from the main road. About twenty feet away from the skeleton lay a shoe, arm and some clothing. Marks on the clothing and papers in the pockets seemed to indicate the clothes were Armer's. At an autopsy held later on, six shots were taken from the base of the skull, indicating the fatal shot was fired from behind, severing arteries and inflicting a wound from which the victim quickly bled to death.

Blanckett was placed on trial in the Santa Fe county district court April 13, 1937. The jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree April 24. Blanckett, who pleaded in the witness stand, admitted shooting Armer, but said it was an accident. He said they had out of the car to hunt and that while he was looking behind Armer he stumbled, and in trying to save himself from falling, the gun he was carrying was discharged.

On appeal both the state supreme court and the supreme court of the United States affirmed the decision of the lower court and ordered the sentence carried out.

Five Generals Few Followers Arm Against Mexico
